

December Update:

Most of December was spent with my nose in the books. I prepared for my exams in Marine Physical Environment and Spreading of Pollution. My final examination process at NTNU was a bit different than my US experience. Exams (four hour duration) were held at Trondheim Spektrum, a conference center, and monitored by Trondheim's senior citizens. Hundreds of students herd to the Spektrum for the 9 AM test period by car, foot or bike which created quite a traffic jam!

I submitted my third draft of my master's paper to Dr. Kinner on the 17th. I am looking forward to her comments and to making further revisions in January.

Following my last exam on the 19th, I left Norway (from Oslo) to begin my Winter Break travelling through Germany for two weeks.

On a side note, on Trondheim's darkest day of the year, the sun rose and set at 10:05 AM and 2:34 PM, respectively.

*The 'Little Hot-Head' is one of the 192 sculptures found in Vigeland Park in Oslo.
Please note the sweater is not from the original artist.*

